

A sake industry that stays true to its roots

And the area's liquor culture wouldn't be complete without its wineries and beer breweries with unique methods that make the maximum use of local ingredients.

Asahikawa
Taisetsu No Kura
 Godo Shusei Co., Ltd.
 Brewing since 1988. This brewery produces some of the best sakes in Hokkaido, which are made from locally harvested rice and the clear water of Taisetsu Mountain, which is located near Asahikawa.

Rumoi
Mashike Cidre
 Mashike
 Established in 2003. This winery uses a natural fermentation process to make wine from the finest local apples. No artificial flavors or coloring are used.

Mashike Fruit Winery ☎ 0164-53-1668

Northern Hokkaido is blessed with all the ingredients needed for a great sake—quality water, rice and wheat. Its freezing temperatures are particularly suited to brewing, which has seen many breweries open over the years since the Meiji Period (1868-1912), and those centuries-old traditions are passed to each new generation.

Asahikawa
Otokoyama
 Established in 1887. Otokoyama's famous sakes have won a string of awards both in Japan and overseas. You can learn all about the culture that informs Otokoyama's practices at the brewery's museum.

Otokoyama Co., Ltd. ☎ 0166-47-7080

Asahikawa
Taisetsu Ji-Beer Kan
 Established in 1996. The best way to enjoy this brewery's craft beer made from Hokkaido ingredients is with a locally sourced meal at the brewery's restaurant.

Best cuisine

After working up an appetite enjoying northern Hokkaido's powder snow and exciting activities, refuel with these amazing local dishes.

Shinko-yaki

An Asahikawa soul food. Ultra-juicy chicken is grilled in a sweet, spicy marinade. It's served at many of the city's Japanese-style pubs (izakaya), and each izakaya has its own unique style.

Sushi and seafood rice bowls (donburi)

Areas on the Sea of Japan coast, like Rumoi, are a seafood paradise. Enjoy fresh local specialties including herring roe (kazunoko), Alaskan pink shrimp and more.

Maruki (Rumoi) ☎ 0164-42-1476

Soup curry ramen

This irresistible dish pairs aromatic curry soup with thick ramen noodles made on-site from Hokkaido Haruyutaka wheat.

Mutsumi Shokudo ☎ 01656-2-1271

Simmered Genghis Khan

Marinated lamb is simmered with vegetable and udon noodles in flavorful tare sauce. The tare infuses the meat and vegetables with a delicious umami flavor.

Restaurant Akagera ☎ 01654-2-2131

Suffolk lamb

The signature dish of Shibetsu. This rare breed of sheep is only found in a few places in Japan. Their meat is prized for its soft texture and mild flavor. The most famous way to enjoy it is grilled in marinade in a dish called Genghis Khan. Amiyaki (lamb grilled on a wired net) is another must-try.
